

SCREENWRITING WORKSHOP

"NON FINISCE QUI"
(It doesn't end here)

Screenwriting workshop - Conducted by Marianna Cappi, Scriptwriter for the film Amori Elementari

After watching the film and getting a brief introduction to writing “by images”, workshop participants will work as a team to create a script with the narrative characteristics of a possible sequel to Amori Elementari. The author will provide some coordinates to start from and other indications during the work in progress, allowing the students to use their imaginations, with method, to fill in the spaces of the story. Ideally pursuing the adventures of the people in the film will teach the students how to critically read their characteristics in order to replicate how they speak, behave and feel. Participants will also learn how to draw on their own experiences and creatively process them, mixing them with the experiences of others, with their own recollections of books and films and, finally, their own tastes. Because the best film we can write is the one we can't wait to see.
